

Cif presents

In October 2005, one month after the hurricane, teams of art therapists and volunteers began visits to Renaissance Village, FEMA's largest trailer village near Baton Rouge, Louisiana to assist survivors with their trauma. As seen in these images, the artwork that emerged out of the chaos and tragedy documents loss, anger and depression as well as the survivors' hopes and dreams for the future. Cif presents this exhibit as part of an historical collection to honor and gain insight from the perspective of children.
